

CHAPTER 7 / Comparing Information on a Chart

Using information from your reading, complete the chart below. Then, on another sheet of paper, answer the questions at the bottom of the page.

Indian and U.S. Government Treaties
	HELLGATE TREATY (1855)	LAME BULL'S TREATY (1855)	FORT LARAMIE TREATY (1868)
Tribal nations involved	Bitterroot Salish Pend d'Oreille Kootenai	Pend d'Oreille Kootenai Blackfeet Nez Perce	Dakota Lakota Nakota
What the U.S. government thought it had agreed to	The government agreed with the goal of making official claims to the native lands and resources and for all tribes to live together.	Allow roads and railroads to cross through, end of tribal warfare, and sharing of tribal lands	Peace was wanted between the white people and the Sioux, acquire more land, and the BIA.
What the tribes thought they had agreed to	Part of the bitterroot valley would go to the salish. The U.S. Government would pay for 20 years.	Compensation in useful goods and provisions chosen by the federal government. Protection for tribal lands against non-tribal members.	Gave Sioux land and hunting rights. Both Sioux and Crow farming equipment.
Problems	Lack of translation. Misproceptions of amount of land proceeded Status of Salish in the Bitterroot Mode of compensation	Tribes believed the treaty brought friendship and payment of passage through their lands. U.S. government saw all land non tribal open for settlement.	Sioux saw it as regenal dominace. And federal goverment saw it as farming and reservation life. Took land from the Crow.

- What tribes were involved in more than one treaty? Pend d'Oreille and the Kootenai
- What were the reasons the U.S. government wanted more land from the Indians? Railroad and settlement
- In what ways did the U.S. government compensate Indians for their land? Goods were chosen by government
- What were some of the causes of misunderstanding between the tribes and the U.S. government? The U.S. Government and the Native Americans had different fundamental ideas on controlling land.